COME back again to the subject of the National Convention, it is hoped that this national convention will be a working convention and not a talking convention. * TO THIS WE HAVE COME!

If it he true that "the average wage-earner has made up his mind that he must remain n wage-earner," as a prominent labor leader claims, whatever may be the cause, then arganized industry has ceased to be the aid and helper of democracy. For democracy requires as the first uccessiv of its existence mobility of condition. The moment the sverage man of any class ceases to aspire, and accepts his condition as fixed, that moment he eases to express himself in the spirit of democracy.—Pres.Tucker of Dartmouth College, in Washington's Birthday address.

A Politician Rightly Labelled.

Eugene V. Debs gives bis Views of Clarence Barrow.

A short time ago Charence S. Darrow was bilted at Terre Haute, Ind., to give a lecture on William Randolph Hearst in the interest of the Hearst movement. One of the local daily papers published the statement that the Socialists were sorely disappointed at the turn Mr. Darrow had taken, as they had always claimed him as a member of the Socialist party. Thereupon another local daily sent a reporter to interview Kugene V. Debs as to what he had to say on the subject. The interview he gave was only published in part and, as this has been quoted and more or less garhled in the reproduction, we now publish the original interview of Comrade Debs in full as follows:

"There has been a decided misunderstanding as to Mr. Darrow's tical affiliations. It is true that he has at times publicly addressed political affiliations. and temporarily affiliated with Republicans, Democrats, Populists, Anarchists, Single Taxers and Socialists; it is not true, however, that he has ever been a Socialist, that he ever pretended to be, or that he ever had any connection with the Socialist party. It is therefore quite evident that there is no ground for the assumption that the Socialists are surprised or disappointed because of Mr. Darrow's espousal of the Hearstocratic section of the Democratic party. The Socialist party has never claimed Mr. Darrow and Mr. Darrow, beyond his well known Socialistic tendencies, has shown no sign of joining or supporting the Socialist movement.

"as a matter of fact, Mr. Darrow has always plumed himself upon being a free lauce, and he has certainly given himself unlimited scope in his political manoevring; and in this respect at least he is admirably fitted to address the Democratic party, composed as it is of all the various and incongenous elements necessary to attract Mr. Darrow's versatile genius, and he should be at his best in that capacity.

"Mr. Darrow was elected to the last legislature of Illinois as a Democrat. Great things were expected of him, but he seemed to have little influence with the "practical politicians" of the Sucker state. So far at I know, Mr. Darrow has always heen a Democrat. While, as I have said, he has for the moment been identified with men and move ments of all political castes, and of no political caste at all, when it has come down to action instead of mere play, he has always been a Democrat and never in a single instance a Socialist.

"He has been Mayor Harrison's chief supporter, twice followed Bryan 10 defeat, and in every election, national, state and municipal, has east his lot with the Democratic party.

"Personally, I have always had the friendliest feelings for Mr. Darrow. Nor have I forgotten that during our trials he served us lovally and to the full extent of his splendid legal ability. But politically and the full extent of his splendid legal ability. eally. I have not the slightest sympathy with him, and in the light of certain advanced positions he has taken in the past, I can not under-stand, nor can I help but regret his present political attitude.

"As for the Democratic party of today, it is writhing in the throes of disintegration; torn asunder by conflicting tendencies which can not he harmonized.

"Its plutocratic wing and its Democratic wing will not flap at the

"In such a chaotic state of affairs the only hope lies in the nomination of a candidate for president who has no convictions at all, or who is so obscure that his convictions are totally unknown.

"A campaign based upon such a nomination will hardly inspire any extraordinary enthusiasm.

"What is known as the Hearst movement has sprung from the wide and deep antipathy of the people to the plutogracy and the trusts. Hearst and his element are smart enough to see the drift and are in politics because they believe they can ride into power on the popular wave of anti-trust sentiment. The Hearst movement represents no wave of anti-trust sentiment. The means movement represents no vital principle whatever. Its pretended Democracy is a sham. No such movement would be possible were it not for the dense ignorance of the people. With child-like faith they believe that Mr. Hearst, as president, would, like a modern Goliath, slay the trust octopus and lead his children triumphantly into the promised land.

"The papers of Mr. Hearst have shrewdly catered to the Socialist sentiment just far enough to appeal to its available support, and having done this they coolly wash their hands of all interest in, or connection with the Socialist movement.

"The Socialists understand Hearst and his office hunt to a nicety. If he is nominated he will serve them the good purpose of purging the Socialist movement of all the muddle-brained element who are with it one day and against it the next, and who will find congenial company in the middle and muddle-class following of the latest Moses.

"The fact that Mr. Hearst has not only a "barrel" hut a vat is making his campaign, especially the preliminary stages of it, a carnival of 16 to 1 glory."

attrackts many persons who imagine that the husiness element is of service in procuring purer and better city government.

We regret that we can not share in this helief. The honking, railroad, gas, electric light, and grain dealing elements, the traveling salesmen and their principals-from the wholesale liquor merchant to the wholesale "cloding" merchant-make up the bulk of "our husiness men." Are they the saints? Are they much better than the laboring element or the politicion element?

We are skeptical about them. The only force they sometimes exert in politics is a force in favor of lower toxation and this is usually a short sighted policy. It means no public parks, insufficient school necomodations and poor roads.

The American business element as a whole is not conspicuous either for its morality or its honor The American business element as a whole is not conspicuous either for its morality or its honor. On the other hand, if he wished to buy a piano, he rould make a payment of "47½ hours" on it. Now there is na means of knowing, nuless one be in the business of manufacturing pianos, how many hours labor are represented in the manu facture of a pianu from the time the necessary wood is cut in the forests and the ores are mined from the ground until finished piano is ready for a Beethoven to make the angel choirs peer down at earth. But it is tolerably certain that 47½ haurs of labor-a few minutes cutting a tree, a few minutes sawing it and planing the boards, a few more mining the necessary minerals and the rest of the time at fashianing the raw materials and putting them logether—would make a big start toward completing a piano. But perhaps the labor represented in a completing a piano. piano that now sells for $650 would be equivalent to the labor of one annu for 500 hours—probably 250 bours would be nearer the correct figures, but let's err if at all on the side of liberality. If "500 hours" be the price of a piano that now sells for $650, is it not apparent that a laborer who received his full praduct represented by a labor-time check for "474 hours," cauld pay for the piano in a little more than 10 weeks?

How long would it take the man who now works eight hours a day in a shoe-shop for $10 a week to pay for a $650 piano? Only 65 weeks. How lang would it take such a laborer to pay for such a piano if he received all af his product-$50 a weekinstead af ane-fifth of it, but were compelled to use money as à medium of exchange and meet a price-mark on the piano that concealed its real value? Thirleen weeks.

Of course it may be said that if the gaverument controlled all industry in behalf af the people, it would not strive to make profit and therefore would have no incentive to charge more a profit and therefore would have the state of the profit and there or a piano. True enough. But a medium of extension of the state of the profit change that does not clearly indicate the number of hours devoted to the production of an article loses sight of a vital fact ta da injustice ta the baker who desires to exchange his 10-hour product for the 10-hour product of the weaver. The moment the attempt is made to translate laborhaurs into dollars and cents that moment error is likely to creep in, even with the best of intentions. The only safe way is to make the price of an article the product of the same number of hours of useful labor that were required to produce the first

That, in brief, is the Socialist idea af a just medium of exchange. When Socialism comes, ALL the people will take this idea and, after giving it their best consideration, do as they please with it. That they will not reject it as a whole is cerlain because it has a fundamental element of justice that is apparent.

That the people will not adapt it as a whole is certain. No human brain is great enough to sit down and outline a revolutionary change in our medium of exchange and nat err in some minor details. Experience must shaw the weak points and they must be strengthened as they develop. One weak point can already be seen. If two men were sawing wood and one should saw 10 cords in 48 hours and the other by warking harder should saw 12, it would of caurse be manifestly unjust to give each a labor-time check for 48 hours, provided each had the same health and strength. It would be too eostly to put an averseer at each woodpile where two men were working Possibly EXACT justice could never be brought about in such But Socialists nevertheless adhere to their theory on the ground that it would come much nearer justice than is possible under the present medium of exchange. For, in cases like that of the woodcutter who might saw 12 cords af wood and be given a labor-time check that would enable him to huy back anly 10 cords, he would nevertheless receive five-sixths af his product instead of the one-fifth that labor naw receives in the form of

Then again: Socialists regard all kinds of useful labor. generally speaking, as equally valuable to society and therefore descrying of the same compensation. That's why they would let the wood-entier's 10 hours of labor buy the product of the piano-maker's 10 hours at HIS trade. As a matter of man-tophano-maker's 10 hours at 1115 trade. As a matter of man-to-man justice the position is impregnable—at least Socialists think so abd are willing to defend it against all comers. Yet Socialists can see a strong probability that experience would show the desirability if not the necessity of making slight variations in a few cases. For while Socialists maintain that, generally speaking, all kinds of labor are equally valuable to society, they realize that a few kinds of labor are not equally AGREE-For while Socialists maintain that, gen-ABLE. Nor are their eyes closed to the fact that certain ather kinds of labor are of extraordinary VALUE to society.

So, under Socialism, the Edisons and the sewer-diggers might—in fact the WOULD—get more than the rest of us, the first as a matter of enthusiastic appreciation, the second as a matter of stern justice. .

WHY ALL FORMS OF USEFUL LABOR ARE OF EQUAL VALUE.

Under the labor-time check medium of exchange proposed by Socialists, any laborer could exchange the wealth he praduced in any given number of haurs for the wealth produced other laborer in the same number of hours.

If the labor-time check system be a just system, it must therefore follow that all forms of useful labor are equally valuable to society

Else the laborer whose product was of great value would be wronged in exchanging it upon even terms for the wealth produced by a laborer whose product was of small value.

In other words, they would give extraordinary compensadecade could probably be noted on the fingers of one hand.

This may sound strange now—this idea of giving extra-rdinary compensation as a mafter of gratitude instead of duty -but it will be made plain in what is to follow.

And realizing, as Socialists do, that while all farms of use ful labor are of equal value to society and therefore entitled to equal compensation, that all forms of labor are not equally they would give extraordinary campensation, essary, to those who are engaged in some of the particularly lisagreeable callings.

And again, they would give extraordinary compensation, if necessary, to those who are doing the most disagreeable work. not because their wark is of more value to society than the work of anyhody else, but because experience would doubtless demonthe necessity of offering some extraordinary inducement to get the work done.

Now to prove that all forms of useful labor are of equal value to society. Let's begin at the battom.

Food may well be regarded as the first of man's necessities. Food for civilized man cannot be produced except by applying the labar of man to the earth. So there would seem to be little necessity for enlarging upon the fact that no labor is more useful than the labor of the man who produces food for other men without which they must die; nor for contending that as a matter of stern justice, no man is entitled to more far his labor than the man wha produces food for other men.

We have, then, this first fact: "Man would die without fand, but his life has been saved by food that ather men have

But the man is naked and standing out doars in a blizzard Even with foad in his stomach, he cannot lang survive unless e have clothing.

Clothing is produced for him and the clothing does exctly what the food did—enables him to live.

Second fact: "Man's life had been saved by food, but he about to die from cold when his life was again saved by elothing that other men had produced."

His hunger satisfied and his body warmly-clad, man still acks something without which he must die. He bas no shelter. The winds of winter quickly penetrate his thick clothing and the snow drifts down about him. And for the third time, his life is saved by the action of other men in providing him with the various materials with which a house may be constructed

Now, let the preceding facts sink into your mind befare you proceed. Without food, clothing and shelter, man would certainly die; no shadow of doubt about it. service can be rendered to man that is more valuable than to prevent him from dying, is it possible, as a matter of actual fact, for any kind of labor to be worthy of greater compensation than that which is devoted to the production of food, clothng and shelter? If you were without all of these things and had been without them even two weeks, is there any thing on this earth for which you would give more, even if you had all the wealth of Wall street, than something to eat, something to wear and a place to-sleep?

So far, so good. We have provided for man, the animal We have fed, clothed and sheltered him. And however gross it may sound to refined ears, the animal part of man is a most impartant part. A man who is not a good animal is not likely to be a good anything. A good body is accessary to a good brain. But a man who has merely a good body is fit to rank only with the beasts. To be a man in the highest and best sense of the word, he must be developed intellectually and morally as well as physically. He must have necess to those things that tend to develope the brain, exalt the mind and coax into blossom all of the latent potentialities for good that are in him. Else he will remain merely an animal. To the extent that he obtains these things, he will rise above those living things that are con tent with food; warmth and protection from the elements. the extent that he is denied them, he will settle back into that class. And the things that man needs to develop him to the uttermost are almost as numerous as the sands of the sea and are more diversified in character than the bues of an Italian

He must have learning. For centuries, astronomers have sat through weary nights to scan the heavens, all for hint-te wrest from the realms of endless space a meagre knowledge of how the world was made and why the planets keep on their tire less ways with all the precision of delicately adjusted machines

Other men have sailed the seas in storm and calm to wrest still further secrets from malure. They have tempted death in the far corners of the earth to gratify the insatiable desire of man to know. Others have written books, composed amsic painted pictures and done innumerable other things, all of which are necessary to the greatest development of man's powers to ris pove the purely animal.

Is the work of the astronomer, then, less valuable, or de erving of less compensation than that of the farmer, the weaver or the carpenter? It is true that man could exist without any definite knowledge of whether the moon was made of green cheese or baled hay, but is ignorance of anything that men have been able to discover pertaining to the mysteries of the universe in keeping with the highest type of mental development? On the other hand, is the work of the astronomer more important, or deserving of higher compensation than that of the farmer prove that the labor-time check medium of exchange who maintains the animal, without which the mental und moral

Is the work of the men who provide the world with mirth dom fram all toil that much earlier in their lives. and melody less important, or deserving of less compensation than the work of the farmer, the cotton planter, or the house builder? It is true that man could exist without mirth or cialists contend that the rule would hold absolutely good in melody. Dumb animals do. But what a sorry world it would practically all eases, that they believe its application would show be without them. How many hearts would stay heavy for the lack of the soothing influence of song, or the mirth that revives the drooping spirits at the end of the day's struggle. The fact tion for extraordinary service as a matter of gratitude, rather that man etjoys mirth and melody shows that his nature rethan as a strict obligation of justice. And the exceptions of a quires them; that he cannot be a whole man without them. Yet quires them; that he cannot be a whole man without them. are the makers of mirth and melody entitled to greater compensation than the farmer who supplies the food for the physical body, without which mirth and melady could nat be enjoyed because life could not exist?

It is the same with all kinds of useful labor. Look closely into those lines of human endeavor that at first glance may seem the least important and far down in their depths will be seen the plans of the Infinite, working for man's good. Every man engaged in useful industry has his work to do and if he were to cease work, the world would miss him. It may seem as if the man who is engaged in making a child's undershirt is more useful to society than the man who makes children's tays, but it is doubtful if even this is true. Childhoad demands amusement. God made it so. The child that has no toys is a sad child and an additional care to its mother. A sad child is an abnormal child, for mirth and gayety are the qualities of natural child-An abnormal child is more likely than a normal child to become an abnormal adult. And abnormal adults are the penalties inflicted upon a careless world for ignoring the rules of right and wrong. "The warld makes its own criminals" savs Lombroso, the celebrated Italian criminologist. It is daubtful if the world knows how many criminals are made in childhaod. Few persons become criminals after they have reached maturity. rate, it may be said that the world demands tays as well as undershirts for its children and as a matter of justice, it aught, therefore, to give as much compensation to the toymaker as it does to the shirt-maker, because the toy-maker would be just as willing to make shirts as toys if the world, by withdrawing its demand for his product, would signify its desire that he produce something else

Then there are certain eallings that the world now consider deserving of extraordinary compensation, not only because of their nature, but on account of the length of time that must be devoted to study before work can be begun. this class of highly paid labor, the physician is a good type. The physician prolongs life -at least theoretically. But physician would never get a chance to earn a fee, or his patient a chance to draw the first breath, if it were not for the farmer who supplies both with food. On the other hand, the carper ters and many other laborers, who are paid much less for their labor than the physicians, devote as much time to learning their trades as the physicians devote to learning how to do their And the tools that a good carpenter must have cost him work. as much as the ordinary physician's medical books cost. Not anly that, the physician is usually educated in a university at the expense of the state, while the carpenter pays for his in struction by working for years as an apprentice for little or na

Look wherever you will among those to whom the world is low giving extraordinary compensation and in a great majority of the cases you will find no valid reason for the discrimination that exists. Most of the highly-paid men are paid highly be cause they are proficient in the art of wresting profits from world, either for themselves, or for the men who pay them their salaries. As we are doing things now, it is a very valuable man who can buy for two cents a yard of cloth that cost three cents o make and then sell it for four cents. And the man who can manipulate a stock market or get 10 per cent more than the average amount of work out of a big force of men can live ia a calace if he can only find large enough scope for his peculiar His ability as a slave-driver was one of the qualifietivities. rations for his position that were possessed by the first president of the steel trust. But what does the world profit, merely be cause a man has the ability to buy commodities cheaply and ell them dearly, or to wheedle labor into lashing itself to the ntmost to produce the most for the least money? As a matter world loses by each operation. It is the capitalist in gains.

Luder Socialism, puch of this "special ability" That we ear so much alcost would be compelled to devote its energies o more useful jurposes, since there would be no occasion for such services in a world that had decided to climinate profit by taking things for public use instead of for private gain.

Then, there are other kinds of labor that are as useful to my as that of the farmer, the weaver or the carpenter, but are less agreeable. In fact, they are disagreeable. No great city ould long exist if there were not sewers, and the digging of ewers is not only very unideasant, but very unhealthful work. Yet somelody must dig the sewers in order that the rest may live. Of course the sewer digger who prevents a man from dy ing of disease at 50 performs no more useful service to that man han the farmer who produced the food that prevented him from dying at birth-or rather, that enabled him to be born at all. Yet Socialism contemplates the probably necessity of paying the sewer digger more for his work than the farmer would e given for producing the world's food supply. If the sewer digger, under Socialism, were to be paid more than the farmer, his extraordinary compensation, however, would not be because of any belief that his work was the more valuable, but because ociety would recognize that it was plainly more disagreeable ork than that of the farmer. As to how much more the sewer digger should be paid than the farmer, experience would have to determine. Society would simply have to place a premium on sewer digging in the form agreealde useful labor, instead of making sewer digges of extra compensation until the inducement was sufficient to coal miners the most poorly paid laborers in the world, tempt men into the trenches in order that they might gain free- capitalism daes.

diggers can be drafted from any rank of life, if the or diggers can be drafted from any rank of life, if the or tion offered be sufficiently alluring. Offer $100 a day digging and any city can even empty its office built anxious will their occupants be to increase their incorthe other hand, the necessity of paying exorbitant price such disagreeable work will always be avoided because increased supply of labarers that will seek emplorment moment the inducement becomes greater than most men And whatever the price for sewer digging me because of its extraordinary unpleasaniness, it will be wor society should pay, the lowest price for which those who will consent to toil, even if that price be three or five price paid for the farmer's work

Premiums in the form of extra compensation would de less also have to be offered to a few other kinds of lat the coal miners, for instance, wha imperil their lives and i health to provide the world's coal supply. But, as in the of the sewer digger, the extra compensation wanld arise because enal is more valuable than food, but because coal is more disagreeable than farming.

But aside from a few particularly disagreeable callike the ones mentioned, it is plain that society would be compelled to offer extra compensation in order to get all laborers it might desire in any line. Men's tastes are so d laborers it might usation would lack for laborers. In fact, all useful labor paid the same, many that are now engaged the so-called aristocratic occupations would prefer manual h on the farm or in the workshop. There are plenty of men wing in offices in every city who would rather run as engine factory or work on a farm than to pour over books, if the pensation in each case were the same. And this statement be the more readily believed when the fact is considered that all were engaged in praductive industry and each were to all of his product instead of only ane-fifth of it, it would be cessary for anyone to wark mare than three or four hour day in order to live as well as or better than he does now,

· But under the actual operations of the Socialist system industry, men would have to do the work for which they are pest fitted just the same as they do now, except that under eialism, the individual would have a better opportunity ascertain the particular occupation for which he was best ed, because poverty would not compel him so often to take first thing he could gel. But, in the long run, the good h smith who persisted in being a bad musician would have to hark to the forge just the same as he now has to do. Con-sense would not be dethroned under Socialism. On the rary, it would be intensified and developed.

In the first part of this chapter, it was said that under ialism, men like Edison would doubtless be given extraord compensation, "as a matter of gratitude, rather than as a stabilization of justice." Conceding, as Socialists do, the en ordinary value of the services performed by a man like Ediwho forms one of the very few exceptions to the rule of the envalue of all labor, it doubtless seems strange to suggest that if extraordinary compensation should be for anything except discharge of a direct obligation on the part of society to individual. Here is the explanation:

Edison could not have done what he has done in the of invention if other inventors had not blazed the way frontter ignorance up to the point from which he started. The labored before he was born to make it possible for Edison egin where he did. Society cared for these early inven while they were struggling to unravel nature's secrets by a viding them with food, clothing and shelter. And during the increvening years, other laborers have supported unit ties in order that the accomplishments of these early inv might be cherished and the knowledge regarding them ha drawn from one generation to another. It is a recognized pri ciple even of law that any invention, even if it he a polent one, belongs to society after a certain number of years, therefore Edison is indeleted to society for the knowledge of hus enabled him to accomplish what he has brought sid Furthermore, it was Edison's environment and the environ of his ancestors, the effects of which were ipherited by hind enabled him to take up his work where others had left it. should also be remembered that it is society that has given! Edison's inventions all the value they possess. It is the phere who have made the electric light and the telephone If Edison were to take the electric light and the telepl able to the heart of Africa, they would not be worth anything

Nevertheless, Socialists would favor the giving to Edis a mark of gratitude and enthusiastic appreciation; rib than as a strict obligation of justice," of a lump sum perhap that would enable him to include to the attermost any dethat he might have for travel, study, or modest laxury and b hances are that he or any other inventor would be befter a fied with such an honorarium than with the uncertain reve that now come to inventors who, because of the infriagement their patents, are compelled to pay for expensive litigation.

But each generation produces so few men of Edison's that the Socialist contention regarding the equal value of kinds of useful labor would not be seriously disturbed.

These, then, are the reasons why Socialists hold that ! labor-time check medium of exchange, which would enable worker to exchange his product for a given number of hours the product of any other laborer made in the same length would do justice to all and injury to noae. good rule outside of mathematics it has a few exceptions Socialists are rather proud of the fact that these except would result in giving the greatest compensation to men really extraordinary ability and to those wha do the most

FREDERIC HBATH,

Official Paper of the Federated Trades Council of Milwaukee and of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor.

Entered at Milwaukee Post-office as Second-class Matter, Aug. 20, 1901.

The Workingman and the Capitalistic Militia.

Gov. Odell of New York, at military dinner given recently, paid his respects to the trade unions, hy advising all militiamen to hold aloof from them. On this point

"The state (he should have said the capitalists) looks to the national guard in time of peril, and in view of the numerous instances of members of labor unions in the national guard refusing to do their intra as guardsmen in time of turmoil, I advise the guardsmen to hold aloof from lahor unions."

To ns the most cheering part of this remark of the governor's is where he says that there have been union men who as guardsmen re-fused to do their "duty." It appears that there was enough of this refusal to "do their duty" on the part of guardsmen who belonged to the guard to give the governor, who by virtue of his office is the commander of the state troups, cause for annoyance and concern. For we feel very sire that the kind of duty these certain New York soldiers mutinied at was sufficiently obnoxious and inhuman to warrant their rehellion. And as we write there floats before our eyes a cartoon that was extensively printed and reprinted in the labor press some ten years or more ago, representing some militiamen in the foreground with levelled guns pointing at a group of strikers, and a whippersnapper of a captain shouting out the order to the soldier "Shoot down your father over there, don't you see he's one of the strikers !"

Now, every militiaman is not ordered to shoot his own father down in cold blood, but many of them have been ordered to shoot down their human hrothers, their hrothers in the working class. The main reason why the trade unions have an instinctive mistrust of the militia service and why they are many of them instructing their members to stay out of the militia, is that experience has shown that the militia is ased for the interests of the capitalist class and for the purpose of in-timidating the working class. Evidences of this misuse abound. In line with this claim, we may point to Colorado.

It is not necessary to recite here the way in which the national guard has been used by the mine owning capitalist oficials of that state to supercede the civil anthorities, even to the point of suspending the writ of habeas corpus, and that, too, when the local authorities complained that they were well able to preserve the peace. But there is a point in connection with a recent occurrence there that may be pointed ont. Pres. Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners was pointed ont. Pres, Moyer of the Western Federation of Miners was put under military arrest sometime ago, on a charge that even Dr. Washington Gladden says was filmsy and far-fetched, and after being kept in the bull-pen with the idea of thus crippling the organization of the workers, the miners were at length able, by going clear up to the supreme court, to get an order commanding the military commander to surrender Moyer into court. Read the following from an associated press report as to what followed:

When the train bearing Charles H. Moyer, President of the Western Federation of Miners, who appears this afternoon before the Supreme Court for a hearing on habeas corpus proceedings, arrived today, accompanied by a militia guard, a small-sized riot resulted. There were a number of persons at the tution to meet the perty, among them Secretary Haywood of the Western Federation of Miners.

Haywood walked into the train and shook hands with Moyer. Captain Bulkeley Wells immediately made a move toward Heywood to strike him. Haywood knocked Weils down.

In a second Haywood was surrounded by angry troopers, who struck at the assaulter with the butts of their carbines and beat him with revolvers, Bert Givens, orderly of Capt. Welles, struck up the muzzle of a gun aimed at Ifinywood, and rescued him from his position between two cars where the guardians had driven him.

Haywood was then arrested, and ie the middle of a hollow square of militiances, maryhed to a hotel near the station. Haywood again showed fight, and was beater/into submission. He was boyoneted and clubbed with muskets until he was insensible. A riot call was turned in.

His injuries consist of a deep cut on the left side of the head, and one on the right side of the head, which almost severed the lower lobe of the right ear. the right side of the head, which almost severed the lower lobe of the right ear.

When it demand was made by Police Capt. Frank Lee for the release of diaywood on the ground that the military rule did not extend to Denver, Gen.
Bell replied that he intended to hold Haywood as a military prisoner and would shoot any ons who attempted to take him.

Later Haywood recovered consciousness and was given treatment. The military officials stated that they would hold him on a warrant sworn out some time ago charging him with desecrating the flag. Chief of Police Armstrong has not yet made a formal demand for the surrender of Haywood, who is constructively under arrest in Denver on a similar charge.

It will be noted that Heywood's greefest online in the mind of

It will be noted that Haywood's greatest crime in the mind of the military commander was that he sought to communicate with his chief. It was a crime for which the commander sought to strike him down, and would have succeeded had Haywood been more of a coward and less of a man of true American spunk. It is clear why he was not permitted to speak to Pres. Moyer. The military was not holding him to preserve the peace, but to embarass and cripple the official operations of the Vederities. of the Federation of Miners, and hence did not propose to grant the two officials of that organization the opportunity to even speak to each other.

The Colorado episode is illuminating. It presents "citizen soldiery" with its mask off. The militia is the creature of capitalism and as such should be shunned by the working class npon whose flesh capitalism

Comrade Isador Ladoff's new book, American Pauperism and the Abolition of Poverty, is precisely the book that Socialists have been seeking ir vain for years. It smbodies a deal of labor on the figures of the United States Census, which has resulted in bringing out the facts regarding the distribution of wealth and the real condition of the laborers, which our governing officials desired to comeal.

Mechanically the book is a wonder at the price. A capitalist publishing house would have charged at least $1.00. Our stockholders yo cants including postage. If you are not a stockholder, write for our booklet "A Socialist Publishing House," and you will prehably decide to join us.

dorse its plan of opposition to the en-netment of an amendment lowering the wage exemption in this state; and Whereas, The plan of opposition sub-mitted to this Board by said Associa-tion contempts to the contempt of the contian contemplates the presentation to the conventions of the Bepublican and the conventions of the Bequidican and Democratic parties a request to insert in their respective platforms a plank which shall pledge their legislative candidates if elected, to vote in opposition to any further reduction of the wage exemption; and Wheteas, An endorsement by the E. It of the W. F. of L. would be contrary to all established precedent and in direct violation of the platform and constitution of the organization, Section 1 of Article, XV. of which provides that "No officer, organizer or deputy organizer shall engage in the advocacy of principles contrary to this constitution, or ciples contrary to this constitution, or work with any organization, industrial or publical, opposing such principles;"

or political, opposing such principles;" and

Whereas, Experience has proved that all platform and pre-election promises of the all political parties are made for the sole purpose of ratching votes, said promises being forgotten as soon as the vodes are enumed, and often before, and that if the workers desire to forther their own interests they must learn to fight their own baltles, without depending a promises made by their naturn enumenic apponents; therefore, be it Resolved, By the Executive Board of the Wisconsin State Feleration of Labor, that, while we rannot sanction the contemplated political action of said Auti-tiarnishment Association, we never theless extend to them a hearty invitation to cooperate with this body in defeating any attempts to reduce the present exemption or to enact laws that may prove detrimental to the interests of the workers of the state; and be it further.

Resolved, That we advise the mem-AUGUST GILL, tion to study their class interests, to the end that they may make intelligent use of their ballots in the interests of the class to which they belong.

ors from visiting other tailors at their homes to discuss craft interests with them, seems almost beyond belief, yet such an injunction has just been issued by Judge Tarrant (La F lletterte) in Milwaukee and at the behest of a tailor boss who has so little respect himself for law and order that there were already two damage suits against him for anlting tailors with whom he is Yet one daring invasion of personal liberty by the capitalist urts makes it easier to go a step farther next time, and this extra-ordinary Tarrant injunction must be placed in the same calegory with that of the Rochester, N. Y., judge, who permitted a grand jury to in-diet a carpenters' union for alleged conspiracy to raise wages!". Under the capitalist law as interpreted by the capitalists on the bench, it is a crime against the people (the eap-italist class) to want to improve and raise the standard of living of the king class.

The members of the Milwaukee tailors' union who have been en-joined, are: General Organizer Mc-President Iver Erickson and Secretary Joseph Smith of local No. 86, George Herhert, P. Tretino, George Frees, M. P. Lyden, John Benson, Edward Zwolsky, J. M. Korsan, A. Fessler, J. Luetzel, William Bauman, A. Lind, F. Horning, F. Stottenberg, F. Rutoski, P. F. Stottenberg, F. Rutoski, P. Eriekson, Edward Korsan, Charles Anderson, Henry Doetzen and the International Journeymen Tailors'

In reality, the injunction secured by the Casey-Stressen-Reuter Co., was secured in the interests of the organization of the master tailors, who are hoping to use the lockout at the Casey shop to break down the union. In fact a member of the Merchant Tailors' association admitted to a daily paper that there was a move on nationally in favor of the open shop. An open shop would mean that the tailors would have no say as to the conditions under which they have to

That a judge would issue an in-junction forbidding locked-out tail-public interest, as the union has been fighting various evils, among them home work, in which the peo-ple generally ought to be interested. The interests of capitalism, which the courts are ready to serve, lie in trying to make the tailor workmen dumb slaves.

 PRELIMINARY NOTICE!

All readers, friends, sympathizers and socialists in Wisconsin will please take notice that the big picnic of Wisconsin Social Democrats will be held at Schlitz Park, Sunday July 17. 1904. You are requested to bear the date in mind in making your appointments, arrangements for vacations, picnics, sociables and other engagements. This notice is also given this early to avoid Branches and Unions from arranging for occasions which might conflict with the big Picnic. ***********

The country points are not organized as they will be later, and we shall need to have comrades from Milwankee to aid in this very necessary work. able is it that some of those who have had experience in the distribution in the city campaign should help in this work.

Will those who have bicycles, or can seeure them for this purpose, please send their names to the undersigned, if they are willing to dnring purpose of distributing Social-Denocratic literature from house to house in the small towns and among the farms

Please give the dates on which on can serve, and your choice of routes, for instance, Milwankee county, northern or southern part Waukesha County, northern, central or southern part.

There ought to be a distribution shout once a month over each route during this time, and it would be better if comrades could take the same route and keep it for that

The work should begin not later than the 15th of May. This is good chance to go out into the fresh air, have some healthy exercise, get requainted with the farm life, and do a great deal of good for the cause. Get your names in as soon as possible, so that the routes can be
